PART III: Outreach Activities and Initiatives (2015 - 2016):

The MPR station employment unit employed five or more (but still fewer than ten) full-time employees during this period. Thus, under the third prong of the Commission's EEO Rule, the MPR SEU is required to perform at least one outreach activity per year. During the 2015- 2016 license year, MPR conducted or participated in the following outreach activities:

A. Internships:

MPR has an active internship program that draws applicants from local, state, and national sources. The station maintains relationships with university career services offices and regularly posts on the station's website, university online bulletin boards, and industry websites. Previous interns have gone into careers in media.

In 2015-2016, we hosted 9 interns, from the schools Columbia University, University of Texas at Austin, Northwestern University, University of California Santa Barbara, Birmingham-Southern College, Temple University, and Texas Tech. Sara Melancon, Office Manager, is the employee with chief responsibility for this program.

B. Youth Media Projects

MPR has set up an on-the-job training program for high school students, providing hands-on training in radio broadcasting in the schools. The student learns how to write, edit, and record audio segments on various topics. Internship participants are mentored by MPR SEU staff to ensure a wide-ranging experience. Sally Beauvais is the Youth Media Project Manager.

MPR also participates in the Summer Shakeup, for Marfa Independent School District guiding elementary and middle-school students. In Summer 2015, the program was led by station representatives Michael Camacho, Engineer, and Sally Beauvais, Youth Media Project Manager.

C. Community Involvement

MPR is home to an active group of about two dozen volunteers. Station staff regularly provides tours of its studios for area visitors, as well as for school groups and community organizations. Tours explain station operations and promote careers in public radio. There are visitors every week to the radio station. They receive tours and a station brochure, plus a short station history. School groups include local students, plus regional groups like NOLS, National Outdoor Leadership School. Reporters spend time with the students, sharing stories about work along the border. Station leadership regularly presents at service clubs, such as Rotary Club, Pilot Club, Kiwanis Club, Lions Club, Leadership Big Bend, and similar organizations. These are led by General Manager Tom Michael.
